Legislation:

There is very clear legislation forcing all businesses to undertake risk assessments. The legislation is also very clear that it is not just the duty of the employer to risk assess, but it is the duty of everybody in the workplace to become involved in the process of risk assessment.

The Management of Health and Safety at Work Regulations 1999 states that employers with 5 or more employees need to carry out risk assessments and record their significant findings. This Video/DVD will train the employer and the employee how to conduct risk assessments effectively in order to comply with the law.
